FRICK RESTS EASILY.

His Memory of the Assault-His Calmness After the Affair. INT ASSOCIATED PRESS. I

Priviletino, July 25 .- Early this morning II. C. Frick, Chairman of the Carnegle combinan, who was shot in his office on Saturday by Alexander Berkman, was sleeping easily. There was no fever, and everything indicated a steady improvement.

Mr. Frick was able yesterday afternoon to describe to a friend more fully than before his memory of the assault.

After the shets had been fired Berkman still held his revolver in his right, while with his left hand he draw the knife. Mr. Reish-Mrs. Ruhling Dying from Injuries " man had the maddened assassin by the right, trying to wrest the knife from him, and Mr. Frick had clutched his throat; thus the three en struggled and swayed about the room Berkman in the mean time lustily plying his IAMS TOO HEAVILY PUNISHED. Feeling that Militia Discipline Was Overdone at Homestead.

IMPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.!
HOMESTHAD, July 25.—There is a general celing that discipline was carried altogether too far for citizen soldiery, in the case of Private lams, of K Company, Tenth Regiment, who was terribly punished and drummed out of camp on Saturday for calling for cheers for Mr. Frick's assallant.

lams was first called before his regiment cut down.

Before he was drummed out of camp half of lams's head was shaved.

lams was deprived of his uniform, given an old pair of overalls, a cheap blouse and an old first Race. Pa old pair of overalls, a cheap blouse and an old hat. The winner to be sold at by two drummers and a company of soldiers.

Then, presenting a most pitiable spectacie, he was forced out of camp to get home the best way he could. Overcome by the treatment, he rushed wildly to the railroad, jumped in the box-car of a freight train and slan med the door shut. In addition to the disgrace and mental and physical anguish he was compelled to endure, lams a dishonorable discharge from the National Guards carries with it disenfranchise ment, and nothing but a special act of the three other defendants in the Homestead Legislature can restore to hun the right to It was said at Col. Hawkins's headquarters that lams is a member of a prominent family in another county, but for about eighteen of months he has been living in Pittsburg, M. W. where his brother, Frank lams, is a lawyer.

The orders in lam's case were approved by Gen. Snowden. Nevertheless the proceedings are freely criticised. An officer of the region ment said: "The hanging by the thumbs described the shaving of the head university of the shaving of the head university."

sorts that he heard no bell, but the Aiva's erew declare that Dimock circled completely around the yacht before striking ner. On this disputed question of signals rests the matter of damages.

The Alva now less in about five fathoms of water. Her masts and funnel are exposed and Capt. Morrison thinks she can easily be raised. The Dimock's stem struck on the port bow, cutting her clear down to the water's edge, but the stanch craft stuck together and did not go down until all on board had been rescued and transferred to the Dimock without even a wetting, although Mr. Vanderbilt and his guests were very much en dishabille, all being asleep in their staterooms at the time of the collision.

In the party, besides Mr. Vanderbilt, were his brother, Fred W.
